Development News

Do you love to throw a party?

Would you like to host a Sign Up party for this year's auction?

One thing great about our area is we have a lot of military families. We are sad when they get transferred out of the area but we also celebrate when orders bring them back here! We had that happen with one particular family who attended a Catholic school that had fundraisers that were a lot of fun. Namely – sign up parties.

A family or a couple of families get together to host a party. They provide the food, drinks, fun activity, etc., but can take this cost as a tax deductible gift to the school.

The party is advertised at the school's auction. It can be a children's party ($25 for each attendee) or an adult party ($50 for each to attend). The money comes straight to the school.

Here are some examples of parties that are put together:

A tea party A pool party A wine tasting
Octoberfest Barbeque Craft parties (kids or adults)

Thank you for considering hosting a party or getting together with another family or two to do so. It's also a great way for us to mingle with perhaps parents with kids in other grades and increase our fellowship with our school.

If you have any questions, please email development@sosschool.org.

Last Counselors Corner covered Test Anxiety. That form of anxiety is a specific phenomenon related to tests and is far from the only source of anxiety students experience in school. Some types of Anxiety students may experience in school can be as follows: Separation anxiety is When children are worried about being apart from their parents or caregivers. This can be a pervasive problem at drop-off and throughout the day. Social anxiety is When children are excessively self-conscious constantly believing that they need to be different or are not good enough. This makes it difficult for them to participate and socialize with peers. Selective mutism is When children have a tough time speaking in some settings. This can make it hard to participate and get answers to the questions the student may have. Generalized anxiety is when children worry about an enormous range of things. Kids with generalized anxiety lend themselves often to perfectionism and can be self-punitive. Obsessive-compulsive disorder is much broader than just a type of anxiety. But it can be characterized as When children's minds are filled with unwanted and stressful thoughts, in which Kids with OCD try to alleviate their anxiety by performing compulsive rituals. Commonly children can have specific phobias in which they fear particular things outside of the norm which may interfere with their school life.

Anxiety is often treated based on the specific needs of the students and is sometimes helpful to seek therapy or a medical opinion. Although some general things make Anxiety better. Having healthy eating, physical activity, recommended amount of sleep, mindfulness, or relaxation, are all ways to stay healthy and Generally can reduce the symptoms of Anxiety. Most importantly students who struggle with anxiety are Often helped most through their support system and their parents. Having people in their lives who support them and help quell those anxious thoughts are the best help.

Star Parents-

This winter has already been a tough one with illness and unfortunately it doesn't bode well for the upcoming winter months. We have already seen cases of Flu (both A and B) and MANY cases of strep, which is proving to be a resilient strain this year. That being said, I want to remind everyone that if your child has a fever or vomiting/diarrhea, they cannot return to school until they have been fever/symptom free for 24hrs WITHOUT medication.

Also, please use your best judgment when sending your child to school when they have a cold or a cough. Even in the absence of a fever, these illnesses are just as transferable to other classmates. If your child has a persistent cough or a thick discharge from their nose, they should also remain home until these symptoms are improving.

Lets try and keep Star of the Sea as healthy as we can this fall/winter!

Please don't hesitate to reach out with any questions for myself or Monica.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Please contact Sarah Carlson if you are interested in substitute teaching. She can be reached at sarah.carlson@sosschool.org
